ED. THE INDEPENDENT:—

"Whom the gods," etc. "Give him rope enough," have become such hackneyed phrases that a mere allusion is sufficient. When the Minister of Foreign Affairs refused the polite request of England's representative to allow old-time friends to visit the ex-queen we thought the last screw was screwed down on the coffin of the powers that be. But in this we were deceived—there was another screw we had overlooked, and that shrew (compositor, please mark, I say shrew) was Ed. Hitchcock, the whilom Marshal of the—?!
One hates to say Republic because it is an insult to anyone with true republican ideas. We have read the "Taming of the Shrew," and if ever a shrew needed taming the Attorney General, W.O., has got one which needs to be tamed. In keeping with the language of this same shrew used on the 3rd instant is the fact that he used no less profane language in his own office not long ago to such august persons as W. O.
Smith (his superior), Henry Waterhouse, and others in some such phrase as "get to hell out of here, you G—D—S—B, this is my office." It is well known that the instructions given by this individual in January were, "When you shoot, shoot to kill," and now at the wind-up of his official career he is guilty of deliberate pre-meditated murder when he says, "If anything like that happens again, don't take prisoners." Shades of the old missionaries, look down on your degenerate sons!! but these are the words recorded and they cannot be recalled. Those who have suffered imprisonment could not have their statements as to the barbarities suffered while in the hands of this man better confirmed; by his own statements he has proved every word they had stated. Another view presents itself, and that is, taken for granted that this shrew meant all she said, then the only Government at the head of these islands was an irresponsible mob of nobodies known as the Citizens' Guard, of which he and his dear lieutenant, McStocker, were the head, for he says, "those men at the Barracks were not the men I depended on." This is an insult to the only men in the pay of the Government; an insult to the commander-in-chief, and an insult to every man who has taken the oath to support the Government. But what are you going to do about it? Either this Government is a mere thing in the hands of a pack of cutthroats or it will show its strength by relegating such shrews as Hitchcock and McStocker to the oblivion to which they and all their ilk belong. Have they the strength to do it?

There is one statement of this fiend Hitchcock which must not be passed without remark. He—kahuna that he is—uses the expression that there are certain "curs" of whites who still stuff the natives with idea that "that woman" (speaking of the ex-queen as only such curs can) will be restored. This is too thin, Mr.
Hitchcock; you cannot, with all your kahunaism, gull the natives to that extent. They know their white friends and they know their enemies sufficiently well to know that you and your ilk are no friends of theirs.
So much for that inspired attempt on your attempt on your part to stir up race prejudice among their (the natives) own friends. It won't work, Mr. Hitchcock, and you know it. All your boast about getting the natives to favor your scheme of annexation don't amount to a hill of beans.

Having said all the above the community waits with the same patience it has always displayed to know what Mr. W. O. Smith intends to do with his recalcitrant servant.
